

The Porter House is a 2½ story stuccoed stone Colonial Revival House overlooking US Route 1. A chain of title, however, traces this property back to the Hall Family ownership. The property was auctioned in 1873 and contained 128½ acres with a good brick dwelling house, large frame barn with carriage house and other outbuildings. This undoubtedly predates Route 1 and the present residence. For some reason the brick house disappeared and the stone house built with orientation to the road instead of the Susquehanna.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The ~~Robertson~~ ^{Porter} House c. 1878-1900? is a Colonial Revival stuccoed stone structure located on a hill overlooking Route 1. The house is just west of the crossroads known as Kilby Corner. The main facade faces south while the primary gable runs east/west.

The 2½ story main block is 5 bays across by 2 bays deep with a continuation of the main roof for another two bays to form a two story rear addition. Another shed roof extends off the east side of the rear section. The entire house rests on an uncoursed stone foundation. The entire house has been stuccoed and the main block is capped with a medium sloped asphalt tile roof.

The main facade is five bays across with the entrance in the central bay. The fenestration is symmetrical, the window sash is 6/6 with simple beaded surrounds, there are no shutters on the house. The 19th century double door has 4 panels with a glazed upper section. The main entrance is emphasized with plain pilasters that support a fairly plain entablature. Frosted sidelights flank the main entrance and a 3 light transom is found above. A front porch extends across the central bay and is supported by square piers. A solid banister encloses the porch. The banister is solid panels with late 19th century molding.

There is a modillioned cornice at the base of the roof. Interior end chimneys protrude at each gable end. There is one dormer in the center of the roof with a 4 2/2 sash. The upper section is arched. The eaves are extended.

The east and west sides of the main block are similar with a 6/6 sash on each side of the chimney pile. There are two 4 pane attic window that flank the chimney stack. The rear section has similar detailing and left fairly plain.

The center hall has a large room that flanks it on each side. The kitchen is located in the back of the house.

The main hall has a very simple tapered newel with oval handrail and square balusters. The stringer is closed. The stair rises to the third floor. The room to the west of the hall is presently the dining room and possesses a Federal influenced Mantel with ½ round fluted pilasters that support projecting end blocks and a stepped out shelf. The end blocks and center block have slight oval indentations.

The east room has a replaced mantel.

CONTINUE ON SEPARATE SHEET IF NECESSARY

The second floor retains most of its interior detailing but it remains on a plain level of ornamentation. There is a full uncoursed stone basement with a concrete floor.

Outbuildings remain on the property without the stucco finish. A spring house is located at the lower end of the property. It is 2 bays across by 1 room deep. It is covered with a low gable tin roof. There is a board door in the southern bay of the west side. And a 4 pane window is also on this side. The eaves are extended and left open. An interior stair descends approximately 20'.

Another fieldstone building is located behind the main house. It is about 15' by 10' with an entrance in the south facade. It may have been a meat house. Other wagon sheds and barn buildings of frame construction are on the property.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Forrer
 The ~~Forrer~~ House is architecturally significant in that it is one of two Colonial Revival house in the Conowingo area. The structure does not appear on the 1877 Lake Atlas. The title search takes the property back to ownership of the Hall Family in the early to mid 19th century. This house undoubtedly dates fifty years after ~~before~~ this date. It can be assumed that the brick dwelling referred to in the title search was one of the Hall properties that was later demolished for probable road building. The present house seems oriented to the road and may have been built in conjunction with a road after 1877.

The present house retains a good deal of its interior woodwork and exterior character.
